

Texas Entry in Air Classic on Way to France

Wildcat Will Be Piloted by Clarence Coombs in Gordon Bennett Race; U. S. Has 2 More Competitors

New Types To Be Used

All Machines in Paris Meet Expected to Beat Average 200 Miles an Hour

The first of America's three entries in the Gordon Bennett international airplane race departed for France yesterday. The two others will leave here this week. All three will attempt to bring to America permanently the premier trophy of the aeronautical world. The Gordon Bennett races are being resumed this year for the first time since 1913. The race this year, according to aeronautical experts, is the most important event in the history of aviation. It is expected that every machine will exceed an average speed of 200 miles an hour. The American machines will have to compete against the best types of twelve other countries.

The course this year is over a closed circuit of 100 kilometers, starting and finishing at the aerodrome of Etampes, near Paris. Each of the machines must cover this course three times without a stop, the total distance being 300 kilometers, or 186.3 miles. The winner is expected to cover the distance in the neighborhood of fifty minutes.

Germany to Have Entrants

The European contestants have succeeded in maintaining secrecy about their machines and their plans. Recently, however, it has leaked out that Germany, although barred from the race this year, will be represented by her latest designs through entries made by Holland, Denmark and Sweden.

One of the interesting features of the race will be the use of synthetic fuels by the machines. It was said yesterday by officials of the Manufacturers' Aircraft Association that the Dayton Wright entry would carry a synthetic fuel developed in the laboratory of that concern, the nature of which is secret.

The three American entries are as follows: United States Army Air Service, Verville-Packard biplane; Dayton Wright, R-B monoplane; Aero Club of Texas, through S. E. J. Cox, Curtiss "Texas Wildcat" monoplane.

The American pilots are among the most noted in the world. The entry which departed yesterday was that of the Aero Club of Texas. The majority of the pilots left here on the liner La Lorraine direct for France, but Clarence Coombs sailed on the Caronia, and will fly over to France from England. He will carry the race to the New York harbor.

Coombs was winner of the Statue of Liberty circuit race, and second in the New York-Toronto race. Roland Rabals, the pilot of the Dayton Wright, has four times ascended over 30,000 feet. He holds the world's speed record for land and sea planes, and is piloted by Captain Rudolph W. Schroeder, holder of the world's altitude record, which has been verified officially at 33,000 feet. Howard Rheinhart, one of the competitors of the Dayton Wright entry, will pilot that machine.

Curtiss Plane Has Special Wings

The Curtiss monoplane is equipped with a 400-horsepower motor. It is also equipped with newly invented radiators and will use special wings in the race.

The Dayton Wright machine is revolutionary in design and construction. It has a retractable chassis—or, in other words, the landing gear is retracted by the pilot. The body of the machine during flight. The monoplane wing is internally braced and there are no outside wires or struts. The wing is also equipped with levers to change its curve, and to increase its speed while landing. It is equipped with a 250 Hall-Scott Liberty engine.

Gypsy Fete a Betrothal? No, Wedding, Says Bride

Queer Mix-up in Ceremony at Tuckahoe, in Which Two Childish Couples Are Chief Actors; Anyhow Everybody Certainly Had a Good Time

News from the matrimonial mart of the gypsy village near Tuckahoe, N. Y., yesterday was varied and conflicting.

While a nuptial, or what appeared to be a nuptial, celebration was launched at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, the chiefs of the gypsy camp denied reports of Friday which were in effect that a marriage actually was to be staged with brass band accompaniment at the hour preceding high noon.

The gypsies, about 125 of them, including adults and children, donned their multi-colored raiment and sang and danced, but for an actual betrothal marriage the gypsy chief, Emil Mitchell, declared that was an event far ahead in the schedule.

Yesterday's ceremony, according to the best information obtainable, was a sort of a betrothal skirmish for two childish couples, who are to be joined in marriage when they are twenty-one years old. That will be about seven years hence and San Francisco already has a reputation for being a place where marriages are made.

Aquitania Here In 6-Day Trip; Brings 2,637

Myron T. Herrick, Ex-Envoy to Paris, Says French Want to See Republicans in Power in Washington

Was Feted by Royalty

J. Hartley Manners Says He Has Just Finished a Comedy for His Wife

The Cunard liner Aquitania, one of the few transatlantic liners now making the run across in less than eight days, arrived here yesterday from Southampton with 2,637 passengers. Her time was 6 days 2 hours 9 minutes, with an average speed of 22.19 knots.

Myron T. Herrick, formerly American Ambassador to Paris, returned after a trip of two months, made especially to attend the International Chamber of Commerce meeting in Paris. He was entertained by King George and Queen Mary on the royal yacht at Cowes.

He said France was longing for the time when the Republicans would again be in power in Washington. He deplored the fact that America was not participating in affairs abroad. Mr. Herrick talked with many statesmen and said all expressed the opinion that Europe would gladly have taken the United States into the League of Nations with the Senate reservations.

See Labor Rule in Britain

Britain, he said, might have a labor government but there was no danger of the ultra radicals doing anything that would ruin the nation.

He had kindly words for Governor Cox and Senator Hanna, saying both as good men who had risen from the ranks. Another traveler was J. Hartley Manners, the playwright, who was accompanied by his wife, Miss Laurence Taylor, the actress. He said he had just completed a three-act comedy for his wife, in which she would appear as the chief of the house, "One Night in Rome." He said he hoped to own or control a playhouse in New York, where his wife could appear and direct its policy.

On the run across Mr. Manners staged the ship's concert and raised a purse of $5,200. Of that amount $2,500 will be given to endow a bed at the New York Hospital in the name of Captain Charles, master of the Aquitania. The remainder will be given to the fund for widows and orphans of British seamen.

Ted Lewis After Leonard

Among others on the Aquitania were Mrs. George Vanderbilt, Ogden Mills, George J. Wilen, Lord Beaverbrook, George H. Lorain, the publisher, Justice Arthur G. Levy and Samuel T. Mann. The last named comes from Prague as the new conductor for the Metropolitan Opera House.

The festival was directed by Mitchell, who is sixty-two years old, and says he has seen all the gypsies in the United States. These gypsies are scattered in 5,500 tribes, according to a gypsy mathematician.

The contracting principals in yesterday's exercises, whatever one may call them, were Mary and Miller Costello and Rosie and Tony Costello. The girls are the daughters of John Costello, where in Germany are the sons of Nicholas Costello.

Nicholas Costello denied the published story that he was to pay $3,500 to the father of the brides. There is no cash in the marriage consideration, according to Costello, merely a flivver touring car, quilts, a tent and cooking utensils, which is not bad, considering the high cost of steam-heated flats.

Embargo Is Declared

On Outgoing Baggage Westcott Company Takes Precaution in View of Possible Strike of Employees

Fearing another strike such as tied up trunk deliveries in Manhattan a year ago, the Westcott Express Company refused all orders for outgoing baggage yesterday. It will call for no outgoing trunks until after its employees have decided whether they will strike or not. It is expected that a strike vote will be taken to-morrow night.

An agreement under which the men returned to work last year will expire to-morrow, it was said, and the company has presented a new one in which more pay and shorter hours are demanded. Instead of $50 a day the men want $6. They demand an eight-hour day instead of one of nine hours.

Last year the strike piled up baggage at the Grand Central station for weeks. The express company suspended its business entirely and the strikers established a private line which interfered with any attempt to deliver trunks by other concerns.

Pincus's hearing was postponed to September 14 at the request of Alexander Lehman, Deputy Assistant District Attorney, who told the magistrate it was expected that Cerf would be able to appear in court at that time.

Health and Fame Held Unnecessary To Happy Marriage

31 Men and Women Students of Ohio University Agree Ability of Self-Support Makes Ideal Wife

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 21.—Health and fame are classed as non-essentials to a happy marriage in a measuring test to evaluate certain traits and achievements of a potential husband and wife made by the thirty-one men and women students of Dr. Edwin L. Clark's class in sociology at Ohio State University.

Fundamental virtues far outweighed social accomplishments, and business was most highly appraised as the occupation of an ideal husband by the class. The women students declared that the essential qualities of an ideal husband were self-support, the ability of self-support made the most ideal wife.

Physical attractiveness in both sexes was marked most desirable, but neither men nor women students declared facial beauty of more than moderate value.

The list of qualifications voted upon was formulated by members of the class. The list was as follows: "The following scale, marked according to the following scale: Absolutely essential, highly valued, moderately valued, slightly valued and indifferent, and of no value, with corresponding negative values."

With few exceptions, men and women placed the same value on like characteristics. Among physical qualifications, good health and high intelligence were the same rank chosen, being of the same rank as physical attractiveness. Nearness of age was regarded as non-essential, but of high value. Nearness of height and weight were matters of slight importance.

In marking mental traits both sexes classed the following as absolute essentials: Affection, intelligence, desire for and love of life. Good citizenship was also considered an essential in the ideal husband, but only moderately valued.
